

Mid City Redevelopment uses Equifax to secure tri-merge credit reports on the clients of its Home Ownership Center. We provide the latest update from Equifax with regard to the recent breach of confidential information. We encourage you to consider their offer to protect your identity going forward. While we regret this ever happening, we appreciate the communication provided by Equifax so that we may keep you informed as well.

Equifax Breach

Equifax, a U.S. Consumer Credit Reporting Agency, recently announced a cyber data breach incident estimated to affect 143 million consumers.

A dedicated website has been created to help consumers determine if their information may have been affected by this breach and outlining next steps for identity protection. Visit the Equifax Security website to learn more.

If you have additional questions, Equifax has set up a dedicated call center at 866-447-7559. It is available every day including weekends from 7 a.m. – 1 a.m. Eastern Time.

How to protect your personal information:

- Visit the Equifax Security website and click on the Potential Impact Link to determine if your information was compromised as part of the Equifax Data Breach
- Enroll in Equifax's complimentary identity theft protection and credit file monitoring services by visiting the enrollment webpage, enrollment period ends Tuesday, November 21, 2017
- Frequently monitor your accounts for any suspicious activity
- Update your usernames and passwords to any of your financial accounts
- Place a fraud alert on your accounts through the Federal Trade Commission website
- Check your credit reports at least once per year through the Annual Credit Report website
- Visit our Information/Cybersecurity Center for ongoing training and awareness tips